Elegance that flowered in France... translated now in that Thomasville look

A. S-shaped cabriole leg, most famous element of Louis XV design, is used throughout Place Vendôme. B. The "fauteuil" is an open-sided chair developed in the Louis XV era. The violin-shaped back is characteristic; also the arms recessed to allow for the wide skirts 18th Century ladies wore. C. Curly acanthus leaves were popular motifs in 18th Century carving. D. Metal grille doors were a Louis XV innovation. E. Damasks and brocades were 18th Century favorites. Thomasville offers a wide selection of rich upholstery fabrics.

Named after Paris' most elegant square, Place Vendôme reflects the influence of 18th Century design in the reign of Louis Fifteenth. The Rococo style was then at its peak, full of movement and elegance. Straight lines were replaced by graceful Rococo curves. Carved masterpieces of cabinetwork were created for the court at Versailles. New styles in upholstered furniture were introduced, covered in rich fabrics. The photographs and keyed diagrams here and on the following pages show you how Place Vendôme design details trace back to the original Louis Fifteenth style.

The charm of Louis XV style... the craftsmanship of Thomasville...in every detail of PLACE VENDÔME

A. Fine caning was favored by French cabinetmakers. Thomasville has used imported premium quality cane for this lovely headboard. B. Sinuous curving lines, Rococo half-circles and scallops silhouette pieces from Place Vendôme, as seen in the apron of this triple dresser. C. Gilded brass "ormolu" embellishments ornamented Rococo-style furniture. Thomasville designers took inspiration for Place Vendôme hardware from these designs, simplifying them for contemporary tastes. D. The carved acanthus leaf lends authenticity to many Place Vendôme pieces. E. Rosettes and carved flower motifs symbolized the gaiety of the Louis XV reign.

F. Parquetry, as seen on this table top, was so admired in the Louis XV period that marble floors in the Palace of Versailles were replaced by parquet. Walnut was widely used in 18th Century furniture. All Place Vendôme veneers are figured walnut; the finish is hand-rubbed. G. The knee of the graceful cabriole leg was often, as here, beautifully carved. H. Wealthy French courtiers had two sets of furniture, for winter and summer. The summer chairs were most likely those backed with cane, as shown here, to let cool breezes through. I. Beribboned motifs are hallmarks of Louis XV carving. J. The grille doors that French designers introduced make a showcase for fine china and objets d'art.
